

ZEN HOUSEHOLD CLARITY TOOLS

Not Sure Yet Quick Start

Uncertainty is still useful information. Start with what another person would have the hardest time handling without you.

Mortgage

Would the home become difficult to keep or manage?

Income

Would someone lose money they rely on for ordinary life?

Final expenses

Would immediate costs become someone else's emergency?

Something else

Is there a person, debt, business, or transition that matters more?

What feels hardest to leave unresolved?

Who would have to deal with it?

When would the problem begin, and how long might it last?

What resource, if any, already addresses part of it?

The one question that would help me choose a direction is:

You do not need to force a decision from this page. Its job is to identify the next useful question. A personal recommendation requires licensed review.